Fused Glass Jewellery Workshop

This 17 hour hands-on workshop is run over 3 days providing you with an opportunity to explore several different fused glass jewellery techniques including; dichroic glass and milfore inclusions, hand painting, micro-mosaic and sand blasting.

Workshop Fee $360.00 per person
Includes tuition, use of studio & equipment, kiln firings and all glass and materials used in the workshop.

Sand and Fire is a Boutique Artist Owned and run Studio Space and 'petite' Exhibition/Sales Gallery. We offer a limited number of "in studio" workshops each year. Workshops are limited to 6 students creating an intimate learning environment with the opportunity to work one on one with the resident artist(s).

Day 1 12:00md - 5:00pm

You will learn basic glass hand cutting techniques and will prepare and "stack" glass for kiln firing over night into unique glass forms to be used as pendants and bracelets.

Today you will have the opportunity to design and make pieces using beautiful dichroic glass and milfore inclusions. In addition you will also make base pieces which will be further enhanced by hand painting and sand blasting techniques to be explored on day two and three.

Day 2 9:30am - 4:30pm

The morning starts with the excitement of opening the kilns to reveal our fused jewellery pieces prepared on day one.

Then on to learn hand-painting techniques to create another dimension and further enhance your work.

In the afternoon on day two you will have the opportunity to move onto more advanced techniques as you design and make your own exclusive designer pendant utilising the glass saw and micro mosaic techniques.

Day 3 9:30am - 2:30pm

On the final day you will be introduced to the art of sandblasting adding yet another dimension to your fused glass jewellery pieces. We clean and finish all pieces created over the three days and end the day early for those who have to travel.
